Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, with certain exceptions and limitations, a person may apply to the Department of Transportation (DOT) for an occupational license if the person's operating privilege is revoked or suspended for various specified offenses and the person is engaged in an occupation or trade, including study or homemaking, making it essential that he or she operate a motor vehicle. However, DOT may not issue an occupational license authorizing the operation of a commercial motor vehicle.

This bill clarifies current law by repealing a provision indicating that the holder of an occupational license may apply for authorization to operate commercial motor vehicles.

For further information, see the NOTES provided by the Law Revision Committee of the Joint Legislative Council.
